

Distinguished Lecturer Luncheon

Monday, December 3, 2007

11:45AM – 1:00PM

(Included in the Registration Fee.)

Leigh Freeman

General Manager, Downing Teal

“Lemonade from Lemons: Creating a Business Advantage with Diminishing Talent”

Mr. Freeman has a broad perspective of the mining industry. Over the course of his eclectic career he served in technical, managerial and executive positions with junior and senior mining companies. He has extensive domestic and international experience. This experience includes exploration, project development, and production. Mr. Freeman is the General Manager and a Principal in Downing Teal Inc., a global recruiting company serving the resource industries. His passions include innovation, the business of mining, sustainable development, and talent for the mining industry including university-level minerals education.